THE DREAMY DIMENSIONS OF THE BEDS AT MILAN'S SALONE DEL MOBILE 2018

Soft, minimal, functional, or traditional: all the trends from the big bedrooms of Milan Design Week

The latest trends for the bedroom are here. It was the beds at Milan's Salone del Mobile 2018 that made a mark with a wide range of styles.

Projects presented came from some of the most important brands in the sector, showcasing a revived interest in comfort with a look to steal the show.

Whether it helps set the mood or simply follows a pragmatic approach, a design bed should express both comfort and wellness while representing the essence of the bedroom. Times have changed, and the bed has become an item to put on display. Bedrooms are no longer just private, reserved spaces to sleep, but a place to chat with friends, use your smartphone, or watch series.

From container beds to the redesign of famous pieces that have led the pack, we found four key trends at this year's Salone del Mobile: upholstered beds with a bold effect amplify the sensation of privacy and softness that's typical of the night area; re-editions of iconic models; thin, slender beds that enchant with an almost oriental essentiality; super functional beds that stand the test of time. Caccaro interprets functionality in a new way. The unusual container bed, Bag (pictured above), by Monica Graffeo, welcomes a series of small objects in a pocket opening of the headboard, like a giant clutch. The simple and intelligent idea was created to keep everyday items — books, cellphones, glasses, and everything else that gets lost in the nightstand — right with the bed itself.

Caccaro once again reflects on the new social role of the bed with Groove (pictured above), which features an entire system without a headboard, rather than a simple standalone product. By hiding this traditional element, the entire structure is reinterpreted.

The series of unusual beds are framed by the wall itself, where a multifunctional shelving bar is attached with support for various accessories like upholstered backrests or hanging hooks. All accessories are completely optional and mobile and can be organized as you wish. A built-in audio and lighting system are integrated which can easily be connected to your smartphone or tablet via Bluetooth. [...]
